AUTHOR INTRODUCTION

While initially it may seem as though undocumented students have limited options upon graduating from college, this guide is intended to shed light on the possibilities that do exist. The guide has been written to be as inclusive and comprehensive as possible by including personal narratives, student testimonials and advice from experts. It is my desire that undocumented students and allies read through this guide and walk away feeling encouraged and unafraid of the next step.

As I navigated through my own life after college, it became more and more apparent that there were limited resources and opportunities for undocumented students after college. Shortly after I graduated from Fresno State, I moved to New York City to pursue a Master's degree at the New School For Social Research. Unfortunately, due to lack of financial support, I was unable to complete my program. I returned home without a plan of action or clue as to what the future would hold for me. I worked in landscaping with my father mowing lawns, trimming shrubs and raking leaves for a few months until I decided to move to the San Francisco Bay Area in search of better opportunities. I had no family, friends or connections there. I began to search for jobs on Craigslist and took whatever I could find. I did various jobs such as cleaning houses, collections, catering, waitressing, bartending, and promotions—all work completely unrelated to my degree in mathematics—but it enabled me to support myself and slowly formulate my next plan for returning to graduate school. Luckily, I also found E4FC, where I have been able to put my skills to good use and create this guide, which I have personally benefited from and which I hope will benefit many more undocumented students.

Through personal interviews I have been able to catch glimpses of what the journey looks like for undocumented students who are working and pursuing careers in education, law, medicine, nursing, business, and psychology, to name a few. The students I interviewed have been able to overcome many obstacles and are now doing great things. Most importantly, they are proud of their accomplishments and eager to share their experiences to empower other students.

I was hesitant to interview students when I first started working on the guide. It was easy to do research, but I did not feel ready to open up to students and have them open up to me. Once I started the interview process, I could not stop! It became a healing process for me to hear the amazing stories of my peers. Many of the interviews have resulted in amazing friendships and memories to last a lifetime.

GOING TO GRADUATE SCHOOL AND PROFESSIONAL SCHOOL

A common route for students interested in furthering their education or career is graduate school or professional school. Each requires ample preparation time and careful consideration.

Graduate Versus Professional School

Consider which program fits you best. Graduate school (i.e., a Ph.D.) is geared more toward research and academia while professional school (i.e. medical school, law school) is more focused on being a practitioner. Graduate school, in many cases, is paid for by the school through research assistantships, teaching fellowships or scholarships. Professional school is much more expensive than graduate school and may require more fundraising. Professional schools will prepare you for a technical trade (mechanic, electrician, plumber, professional chef, pastry master, law, etc.) and are often tied to a co-internship/progressive learning model meaning that you will have hands-on exposure while also studying in “X” field. Further, professional school is often a key time to build RELATIONSHIPS, which may be very important personally and professionally down the road. Bottom line, graduate school makes sense if you want to become a researcher/professor; professional school makes sense if you want to PRACTICE a certain profession outside of academia.

Deciding Which School to Attend

When thinking about graduate school, ask yourself a few questions. Why are you going in the first place? Is it to enhance your knowledge in a specific subject/topic? Is it to improve your future employability? Is it required in your field of study/work? Do you meet the academic requirements of this program? Do you need to take the GRE, GMAT, MCAT, LSATs or any other entrance exam? If so, what scores are they looking for? How big of a graduate program are you looking for? Is mentorship and guidance important to you? Will research and assistantship opportunities be open to you? Are there any student graduate support groups that will help you through the program? Where do students publish, get exposure to conferences, and become acquainted with opportunities of employment from “X” college?¹

You should also consider the implications that attending graduate school will have on you and your family. Think about the sacrifices you and your support system will have to endure and the rewards that will come from it. Think about the obvious: the COST! Think about the pros and cons of moving away from home or possibly to a different state. Are you willing to consider schools across the country or international schools? What will be the implications of your actions? Who are you putting at risk and for what? And are you ok with this personally?

Research “safe” communities and how receptive they are to undocumented students. Conduct research in the local newspapers and see added community comments about other students in your situation within that community. Think about your life as a graduate student in that community. How will you get around (transportation, housing, social life, etc.)?

Private Versus Public

Private and public schools differ greatly in tuition and in how they generate funds for their programs. Public schools usually have lower tuition, but funding will be heavily dominated by public funds from state and federal dollars, which are currently out of reach for undocumented students in most states. Private universities usually cost more, but may offer a better financial aid package. Keep in mind, however, that some may not accept undocumented students into their graduate programs. For those that do, funding options may be a little more relaxed and not as heavily tied to state and federal dollars. It may be wise to apply to both public and private schools to have options. What you need to keep in mind is that YOU have to create your opportunities.

form, and some may include a rating system for the recommender to fill out in addition to the letter. Make sure to allow consent to privacy acts if required by the letter of recommendation forms.

Remember to keep track of your letters to ensure that they are submitted on time. If your professors are not being responsive, you may try e-mailing them or simply asking someone else. In general you should ask a few professors ahead of time if they are willing to write you a letter just in case someone is too busy, and always follow through with a thank you letter or update on your application process with those selected. This is not a requirement but rather common courtesy and an ability to expand and grow your personal network.

See Appendix C for a Recommendation Packet Checklist prepared by Professor Roberta Espinoza.

GPA

While GPA is an important part of the application process, you should not discourage yourself from applying if you have a low GPA. Of course the higher the GPA the better, but many graduate schools do not expect you to have a 4.0 GPA. Once again familiarizing yourself with the program is key. Look through the website to find the minimum or average GPA for your specific program and call the school if you can't find this information on the website. You may also be able get away with a lower GPA if you have great research experience and an amazing personal statement and statement of purpose. If you are from an underrepresented population, then this should also provide you with added pride and motivation to continue the search, and schools may take this into account in the admissions process.

Resume/Curriculum Vitae

The primary differences between a resume and a Curriculum Vitae (CV) are the length, what is included and what each is used for. A resume is a one or two page summary of your skills, work and volunteer experiences, and education. A Curriculum Vitae can be longer (at least two pages) and is a more detailed synopsis of your work, including your educational and academic background as well as your teaching and research experience, publications, presentations, awards, honors, affiliations and other details. A resume is generally used when seeking a job in the business or non-profit world while a CV is used primarily when applying to academic, educational, scientific or research positions. It is also applicable when applying for fellowships or grants in graduate school.

You should constantly update both your resume and CV because you may forget to include details if you wait too long to update.

See Appendices D and E for sample resumes and Appendix F for a sample CV.

cation, the military etc. The key is that your background shows a track record of leadership.

Medicine

Most students interested in the medical field begin preparing throughout their undergraduate degrees by taking the standard courses required of pre-med students. Most medical students major in science-related fields, but a science degree is not required. Students may choose to apply to medical school right after the undergraduate degree or may take some time off.

Students admitted to medical school tend to have high academic achievement, including high MCAT scores and work experience and multiple extracurricular activities related to the medical field such as volunteering at a hospital or clinic, being a third rider on an ambulance, or performing scientific research with a professor. The medical school curriculum for the first two years is centered in factual knowledge and key skills such as critical thinking, establishing a relationship with patients and conducting medical histories and examinations. The final two years involve rotations through clerkships in primary care and specialty medicine, applying what was learned in the classroom. At some point during medical school, students must take the United States Medical Licensing Examination (USMLE), a three-step test that all potential physicians must pass in order to practice medicine in the United States and Canada. The first part covers basic medical principals and is taken at the end of the second year, the second part is on clinical diagnosis and disease development and is taken in the fourth year, and the final part on clinical management is taken during the first or second year of residency.

Students interested in biomedical research usually enroll in M.D./ Ph.D. programs. Such students take the first two years of medical school and then, upon completion of one or two of the third-year clinical clerkships, enter the graduate phase of the program. Once they complete their Ph.D. curriculum, they return to clinical studies. The entire process takes seven to eight years.

During the last year of medical school, students choose their specialties and begin to apply for their residency. Residencies are three-to-five year specialized training programs that follow graduation from medical school. Students are matched based on preferences by the National Resident Matching Program (NRMP) to ensure that applicants have a residency program appointment. Programs are competitive and limited in the number of residency slots. Physicians must complete an accredited residency program to become certified to practice medicine. Physicians who seek more specialized training may pursue a fellowship. Once their education is complete, physicians obtain certification in their specialties.

The median cost of medical school in 2010 was $49,298 for public school and $66,984 for private. The mean debt at graduation was $150,000 at public schools and $180,000 at private schools. Most medical students use loans to pay for medical school such as Stafford and PLUS. Other expenses related to medical school include a $160 application fee for the first school and $33 for each additional school, a $25-$100 secondary application fee and $235 for the MCAT.¹² During your residency and fellowship, you will earn a small salary, but not nearly as much as a full-fledged doctor would make.

As an undocumented student, you will find it difficult to go through the medical school process because, while you could apply and be accepted to medical school, you would only be able to complete the first two years of medical school since the process after the second year requires background checks and proof of legal status. If you are certain you want to become a doctor, you may consider applying to medical school outside of the country. Mexico and Cuba, for example, offer great medical programs with good incentives and more affordable prices.¹³ However, you should know that leaving the country has risks that should carefully be considered prior to taking action (see Going Abroad Section below). For an alternative option, see Public Health below.

Public Health

Alternative options for undocumented students interested in the medical field are Master's or Ph.D. programs in public health. Public health is the science of protecting and improving the health of communities through education, promotion of healthy lifestyles, and research for disease and injury prevention. Public Health aims to improve the health and wellbeing of people around the world and works to prevent health problems before they occur. Public health incorporates the interdisciplinary approaches of epidemiology, biostatistics, and health services; other important subfields include environ-

studying for and taking the LSAT and applying for law can be a dilemma about what to reveal with regard to your immigration status because there's a chance that a program may reject you simply because of your status. However, the social work profession has a strong commitment to social justice and some programs may be sympathetic to you. Also, because social workers deal with diverse populations, being bilingual/bicultural is something to highlight as an asset. However, admission decisions include an evaluation of students' work and volunteer experience, which could potentially put undocumented students at a disadvantage, so you may want to offer an explanation for why this history may not be strong. As undergraduates, prospective MSW students may want to seek out service learning, internship, and volunteer opportunities. As MSW applicants, they may want to include their involvement with social action and advocacy groups. After acceptance into an MSW program, the Field Education faculty will work with the student to find an appropriate internship. Candor with the field faculty will probably be helpful. Some settings, including those working directly with children, may require fingerprinting, which undocumented students can do. MSW programs in California offer significant stipends for some MSW students interested in working in Child Welfare or Mental Health.²⁰ However, this requires signing a commitment to public employment, making these stipends unavailable to undocumented students under current law.²¹ Most employment opportunities upon graduation are with public agencies that expect workers to be regular employees. However, it may be possible to work as an independent contractor.

Teaching Credential Program

Teaching credential programs consist of coursework and field experience, including the student teaching required to obtain the Multiple and Single Subject teaching credentials in California. Students interested in teaching elementary school may enroll in Multiple Subject Instruction and students interested in teaching high school may enroll in Single Subject Instruction. Teaching credential programs typically take a year to complete. Admission into a Teaching Credential program

Education

Students interested in the field of education may choose to teach elementary, junior high or high school, or continue with graduate school to become professors at a university or college. Students interested in teaching must comply with the teaching requirements of each state, while students interested in doing educational research must adequately prepare for acceptance into graduate school in education. While teaching credentials are required for most public school instruction, private schools frequently hire teachers who are college graduates but lack credentials.

GETTING INTERNSHIPS

Internships can provide an opportunity for you to determine whether you are interested in a particular career, gain experience in your field, create a network of contacts, and sometimes gain school credit. An internship may also lead to a full-time job. For undocumented students, internships are a great way to gain valuable work experience without being an employee.

Deciding Which

- » Target key people you would like to talk to, introduce yourself and describe what you do.
- » If you are unable to identify someone on your target list, look for an individual you already know who is conversing with someone you do NOT know.
- » Exchange business cards and follow up with an e-mail or a phone call.

EARNING A LIVING

Most undocumented immigrants face significant barriers to pursuing employment in the United States. Employers are required to ask for proof of legal status, and it is illegal for any employer to hire a person knowing and organizing them into three main groups: behavioral control, financial control, and the type of relationship of the parties. Those factors appear below, along with comments regarding each one:²⁹

Behavioral Control:

Facts that show whether the business has a right to direct and control how the worker does the task for which the worker is hired include the type and degree of

formed are especially important. However, employees may also incur unreimbursed expenses in connection with the services they perform for their business.

4. An employee usually has no investment in the work other than his or her own time. An independent contractor often has a significant investment in the facilities he or she uses in performing services for someone else. However, a significant investment is not necessary for independent contractor status.
5. An independent contractor is generally free to seek out business opportunities. Independent contractors often advertise, maintain a visible business location, and are available to work in the relevant market.
6. An employee is generally guaranteed a regular wage amount for an hourly, weekly, or other period of time. This usually indicates that a worker is an employee, even when the wage or salary is supplemented by a commission. An independent contractor is usually paid by a flat fee for the job. However, it is common in some professions, such as law, to pay independent contractors hourly.
7. Since an employer usually provides employees a workplace, tools, materials, equipment, and supplies needed for the work, and generally pays the costs of doing business, employees do not have an opportunity to make a profit or loss. An independent contractor can make a profit or loss.

Type of Relationship:

Facts that show the parties' type of relationship include:

8. This is probably the least important of the criteria, since what really matters is the nature of the underlying work relationship, not what the parties choose to call it. However, in close cases, the written contract can make a difference.
9. Whether the business provides the worker with employee-type benefits, such as insurance, a pension plan, vacation pay, or sick pay. The power to grant benefits carries with it the power to take them away, which is a power generally exercised by employers over employees. A true independent contractor will finance his or her own benefits out of the overall profits of the enterprise.
10. If the company engages a worker with the expectation that the relationship will continue indefinitely, rather than for a specific project or period, this is generally considered evidence that the intent was to create an employer-employee relationship.
11. If a worker provides services that are a key aspect of the company's regular business activity, it is more likely that the company will have the right to direct and control his or her activities. For example, if a law firm hires an attorney, it is likely that it will present the attorney's work as its own and would have the right to control or direct that work. This would indicate an employer-employee relationship.

Employees vs. Independent Contractors: Main Differences³⁰

An Employee	An Independent Contractor
Has a continuing relationship with an employer	Does the same work for multiple clients
Normally is furnished significant tools, materials, etc. by the employer	Has own tools and equipment and can hire, supervise and pay assistants.
Can quit at any time without incurring liability	Receives all profits and is held liable for all losses and debts
Must comply with instructions about when, where and how to work	Sets his or her own hours and work schedule
Is trained by the employer	Uses his or her own methods

Employees vs. Independent Contractors: Examples

*This section comes from "Your Rights As An Independent Contractor, Part 4: Industry Examples," About.com.

Below you will find examples of the types of work considered to be an independent contractor or an employee.³¹

Computer Industry

Steve Smith, a computer programmer, is laid off when Megabyte Inc. downsizes. Megabyte agrees to pay Steve a flat amount to complete a one-time project to create a certain product. It is not clear how long it will take to complete the project, and Steve is not guaranteed any minimum payment for the hours spent on the program. Megabyte provides Steve with no instructions beyond the specifications for the product itself. Steve and Megabyte have a written contract, which provides that Steve is considered to be an independent contractor, is required to pay Federal and state taxes, and receives no benefits (such as health insurance, vacation pay, or sick pay) from Megabyte. Megabyte will file a Form 1099-MISC. Steve does the work

(Mario Lio,
B.S. Civil Engineering, U.C. Berkeley)

Promotions

Working in promotions is also something that you may want to consider, especially because the work is very flexible and, in most cases, individuals are hired as independent contractors. There are hundreds of marketing companies looking for people to promote all types of products including alcohol, energy drinks, make-up, phone apps, cell phones, and even papayas! A good starting point to finding work as a promoter is to look on Craigslist under the "Gigs" section under "Events." Most posts will indicate that they are looking for brand ambassadors or promotional models.

(Dana Kim, B.A. Architecture, U.C. Berkeley)

Other Ideas

There are many, many other areas where students or graduates can use skills they learned in school or outside of school. Many tech companies hire a significant portion of their computer programmers as independent contractors, while more basic skills such as dog-walking, child care, and party planning can easily become the basis for starting a business or doing independent contractor work.

Talking to Potential Clients about Working as an Independent Contractor

When it comes to speaking to potential clients about working as an independent contractor, you may consider doing the following:

- » Make sure the type of work you wish to do follows the independent contractor guidelines
- » Become familiar with the legal aspects of working as an independent contractor
- » Highlight your assets and skills and be prepared to demonstrate how they meet the needs of your clients
- » Research similar types of work so you know the standard rate for your services
- » Become familiar with writing contracts and make sure to sign a contract with every client

(Karla C. Reyes, B.S. Business Administration, San Jose State University, Small Business Owner)

IRS Forms Required of Independent Contractors

W-9: The IRS requires that payers use Form W-9 to obtain taxpayer identification numbers from independent contractors. The W-9 is filled out at the start of work by an independent contractor and kept on record by the payer.³² See Appendix H for Form W-9.

1099: The IRS requires that payers use Form 1099 to record the total amount of money paid to independent contractors in any given calendar year. A payer must file a 1099 for each independent contractor paid $600 or more. A copy of the 1099 is given to the independent contractor.³³ See Appendix I for Form 1099.

Starting a Sole Proprietorship

Definition: An independent contractor may wish to start his or her own company and provide services in the form of a sole proprietorship. A sole proprietorship is a type of business entity owned and run by one individual where there is no legal distinction between the owner and the business. With a sole proprietorship, the owner may use a trade name or a business name other than his or her own legal name to do business; in the United States, there is a requirement to file a "Doing Business As" (dba) statement with a local government agency, such as the county clerk's office.³⁴

Note: Working as a sole proprietor still means that you are working as an independent contractor. You have the same liability, should follow the same guidelines, and must use the same tax forms as an independent contractor.

Steps to Setting up a LLC in California³⁹

1. The group of workers must research the type of business plan they want and the state regulations.
2. An agreement is made that establishes how the business will be managed, who the members will be, how membership will be granted or revoked, and any other details.
3. To become a LLC in California, a person or group must file Articles of Organization with the Secretary of State along with a fee of $70. The articles can be filed by filing a form on the Secretary of State's website.
4. The group should develop a management agreement. In California, the Beverly-Killiea Limited Liability Company Act, Corp C 1700-17655 contains rules regarding internal management.
5. Within 90 days of filing the articles, the LLC must file a Statement of Information with the Secretary of State. This includes names and addresses of LLC management and all members of the LLC, the general nature of the LLC's business activities, the name and address of the LLC's agent of service of process and the address of the LLC's principal business office. The statement would be filed every 2 years and when the information changes.
6. The LLC must obtain an Employer Identification Number (EIN) as its business tax identification number. The process of completing an EIN application on Form SS-4 can be done online, by phone, or through your attorney.⁴⁰

A Recap of Requirements for Different Types of Work

	Full-Time Employee	Independent Contractor	Co-Owner of LLC
Personal Information Required	Name, Address, SSN, statement about whether you are a citizen of the United States, noncitizen national of the United States, lawful personal resident or an alien authorized to work	Name, Address, SSN or ITIN	None (All members may use the LLC EIN)
Government Forms	I-9, W-2	W-9, 1099, Form 1040	Form 8832 for classification of LLC, Form 1065 for LLC partnership, Form 1120 for LLC Corporation
Taxes	Employer withholds income tax, social security tax and Medicare tax from each paycheck. Employee must file income tax return and pay federal income tax.	Contractors must pay self-employment and income tax. Contractors must file an income tax return for earnings over $400 and pay federal income tax based on net income.	LLC pays $800/ year minimum franchise tax + annual fee based on total income. Co-owners must pay income tax based on earnings from LLC.
Startup Costs	None	Contractor pays $35 for fictitious name registration with county and $10 for business license (in California).	LLC pays $70 for Articles of Organization + attorney fees for filing and creating an agreement (in California).

Document Fraud

* This section written by Bill Ong Hing, Professor of Law at the University of San Francisco.

Working with false documentation may have implications in the long run. Congress has enacted special laws to punish individuals who use false immigration documents to obtain work in the United States.

Definition of Document Fraud

The following provisions apply to all workers including U.S. citizens and those that are here in an undocumented status. It is unlawful for any person to knowingly:

- » Forge, counterfeit, alter, or falsely make any document for the purpose of satisfying a requirement of the Immigration and Nationality Act;

It is important to understand your immigration status and learn about potential remedies. Educators for Fair Consideration's Legal Services team provides customized information about possible immigration remedies to immigrant students nationwide. Undocumented students, who are trained by committed and experienced immigration attorneys, do much of this work.

This confidential and anonymous service is intended for immigrant students who do not yet have legal residency or citizenship in the United States. Students should be under 35 years old and enrolled (or intending to enroll) in college. If you or someone you know would benefit from the Legal Services, you can fill out an online intake form at www.e4fc.org/legalservices.html.

While there are numerous immigration remedies that may be available to undocumented students, we include detailed information about Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals and a longer-term remedy that may not be commonly known to attorneys working with undocumented students. Also, make sure to visit E4FC's website to find our guide "Beyond Deferred Action: Common Immigration Remedies Every Dreamer Should Know About."

Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals

Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA) is an administrative policy that will allow eligible undocumented students to receive a two-year deferment of their deportation and work authorization.

To be eligible for DACA, individuals must:

a U.S. consulate and then (if the visa is granted) enter the United States in valid nonimmigrant status with work authorization.

How Do I Apply for a D3 Waiver?

You can apply for a d3 waiver in two ways: at a U.S. Consulate or a Port of Entry in your country of citizenship. Application for the d3 waiver thus requires you to leave the United States. It is important to remember that not only will departure automatically trigger the 10-year bar in most cases, but you will need to return to your birth country, which may be unfamiliar to you. You are also advised to consider the consequences of leaving the United States to apply for a d3 waiver before receiving H-1B petition approval. Even with petition approval, the d3 waiver and H-1B visa application are not guarthat job in that geographic area, as well as to the actual wage paid at the company for others in the same job, among other attestations.⁴³

The H-1B petition is submitted to USCIS with Form I-129 and supplements, a Labor Condition Application (LCA) certified by DOL, and evidence of the specialty occupation and the applicant's eligibility for H-1B status.

H-1B approval does not guarantee H-1B approval, even without the necessity of the d3 waiver application. USCIS adjudicates petitions, but a different agency, the Department of State (DOS), issues machine-readable visas (MRVs) outside the country. If you apply for an H-1B MRV concurrent with your d3 waiver application at a U.S. consulate abroad, H-1B petition approval by USCIS is the necessary first step.⁴⁴

Is the D3 Waiver Guaranteed?

A d3 waiver could be denied, or might be approved only after weeks or even months of delays. This is why it is important to wait for H-1B petition approval before making plans to leave the United States.

Is there any written guidance on d3 waiver adjudication?

The leading precedent decision on d3 waivers, Matter of Hranka, 16 I&N Dec. 491 (BIA 1978), articulated three criteria for consular officers to rely on when deciding whether an applicant's immigration violation should be waived:

1. The risk of harm to society if the applicant is admitted to the United States. For most undocumented students, their risk of harm to society is low if they intend to enter the United States as a working professional. Rather, there may be a potential benefit to U.S. society.
2. The seriousness of the applicant's prior immigration law, or criminal law, violations. This is compared to the range of grounds of inadmissibility covered by the d3 waiver. The immigration violation of unlawful presence, for example, is less serious than criminal convictions, drug offenses, or smuggling.
3. The reasons for wishing to enter the United States. This is not limited to exceptional or humanitarian circumstances, but covers any legitimate purpose. Entering the United States for the purpose of pursuing professional employment with a non-profit, for instance, could be considered a legitimate reason at the discretion of the consular officer.

Consular officers also receive guidance from the State Department's Foreign Affairs Manual (FAM). On factors to consider when recommending a waiver, 9 FAM 40.301 N.3a states in part: "While the exercise of discretion and good judgment is essential, you may recommend waivers for any legitimate purpose such as family visits, medical treatment (whether or not available abroad), business conferences, tourism, etc."

Customs and Border Protection (CBP) – the officers who make immigration decisions at ports of entry– receive stricter guidance from the Inspector's Field Manual (IFM). IFM 17.5(e)(1) states in part:

Although the FAM provides guidance for State Department officers, the CBP is not bound by it. The inspector should consider all of the above and also consider that the Congress has deemed these aliens inadmissible to the United States. In considering the waiver, weigh the benefit, if any, to the United States should the waiver be granted. In situations where the proposed visit is for the purpose of medical treatment, consider whether such treatment is available to the alien abroad. Granting of waivers of these grounds should not be routine and available just for the asking.

This does not necessarily mean that a d3 waiver application is more difficult at a border crossing than at a consulate. Each border crossing and consulate has its own local rules and procedures, as well as personnel, which may impact the application process. Consultation with an immigration attorney will help prepare you for h border crossing |pighcennel,

Family and Friends

Family is what may keep you going. You may be driven to set an example for your younger siblings, or you may be conscious of the hard work your parents endure and want to help. Having a supportive family makes a huge difference because it becomes one of the only consistent support networks. When there are problems in the family, your friends may provide a similar support network.

experience can be a liberating experience. You may not realize how much you are actually holding onto inside until you put it down on paper or tell someone about it.

Finding Your M

Finding A Local Immigrants Support Group

Finding a support group can provide a safe space for you to be open about your status. You may feel as though you are the only one going through this, but when you become involved in an organization or group, you realize that you are not alone. Regardless of where you live, the likelihood of there being a local immigrant support group is high. You may be surprised to find an organization you've never heard of by doing a quick Google search. If you don't find anything in your community, you may want to consider starting your own group.

Mentoring/Tutoring

Lending a hand to younger immigrant students isn't only a nice gesture; it can also be a rewarding experience. You may see yourself in the students whom you work with and feel good about yourself for making a difference in someone's life.

The Power of Storytelling

Many students grow up silenced about their situation, creating feelings of shame. Writing or sharing your as eating healthfully and getting adequate sleep, are all important.

Seeking Professional Help

When a friend or a family member is not enough, there is always professional help. Plenty of students take advantage of the psychological services provided at school, but even after you graduate there are trusted psychological services offered at low prices in your community.

letter in support of the California DREAM Act – state legislation that would provide financial aid to undocumented students – to the Governor of California, Arnold Schwarzenegger. My entrepreneurial skills were shown when I successfully launched a scholarship list for undocumented students in the San Francisco Bay Area that received over 15,000 hits online. This publicity allowed me to write the article “Not just a Latino Issue: Undocumented Students in Higher Education” for the Journal of College Admissions, a trade publication that reaches thousands of college admission counselors nationwide. All this work portrays my leadership and creativity in implementing plans for community betterment.

I believe that all of these experiences and accomplishments have shown my hard work and dedication in meeting the needs of my Latino and Asian immigrant communities. Overcoming my hardships made me a rational and flexible thinker, who has learned to identify problems and opportunities and find alternative solutions, characteristics that will allow me to succeed as a planner in community development. I believe that planning is a meaningful way to improve the lives of marginalized ethnic communities because it discusses the current situation of the community, but adds a long-term view to discussions of how a community should be planned out as. As such, I hope to assist immigrant communities in creating plans and policies to meet their social, economical, political, cultural needs, and to ensure their long-term sustainability. As a visionary, I can already see that the changes I have begun now will create better communities in the future. I believe that the University of Toronto is the perfect place for me to pursue a Planning degree, and to follow a path to a rewarding career.

Sample Statement of Purpose

Carlos Macias Prieto

Statement of Purpose

My goal is to obtain a Ph.D. in American Studies from Purdue University and continue my study of social movements in the United States and Latin America. After completing my graduate research I plan to teach American Studies and Ethnic Studies at a large research university and hope to engage non-traditional students—first generation college students and immigrant students—and motivate them to continue their intellectual and professional pursuits. As a professor I plan to publish my research and contribute to the academy by collaborating with other professors and mentoring both graduate and undergraduate students.

My interest in Chicana/o and Latin American History goes back to my early years in high school. I remember visiting the library often, searching for books that would tell the history and stories of the familiar: of Mexico, of working class parents and their immigrant children growing up in American cities. I was searching for the narratives that were not included in school curricula. However, it was not until I started taking college courses in critical thinking that I began to realize that the history and stories of Chicana/os and millions of immigrants were largely neglected. This sparked my curiosity. I became determined to study the history of struggle of millions of people who have labored and suffered and, yet, their stories are un-chronicled. At the University of California, Berkeley, my interest in and passion for the study of Chicana/o and Latin American History was further ignited. I became convinced that reading what scholars have written is not enough; I want to write the history and stories of people many scholars have neglected.

As an undergraduate at Berkeley I took a number of courses that nurtured my academic development.

José Ivan Arreola was born in Durango, Mexico and came to the United States when he was four years old. With the unconditional love and support of his family and the guidance of many mentors along the way, Jose went on to study Political Science, History and Ethnic Studies at Santa Clara University – where he received a full scholarship. During his college career, Jose was an outspoken leader on campus around issues of racism, inequality, and oppression. Jose’s work culminated as the Executive Director of the Multicultural Center of Santa Clara University. Upon graduation, Jose was trained as a community organizer for racial and economic justice by the Center for Third World Organizing in Oakland, CA. As an undocumented student himself, Jose utilizes his experiences to help empower and support other undocumented students across the country.

Krsna Avila is a recent graduate from the University of California, Davis where he received his Bachelor of Arts Degree in Sociology and Psychology. Arriving in the United States when he was four months old, Krsna only faintly remembers Mexico, the country where he was born. Growing up in Oakland, he was a victim of four different gun-shooting incidents. His ambition to succeed academically has become a passion as well as a philosophy for self-development. In addition to coordinating E4FC’s Legal Services, Krsna is looking forward to receiving acceptance letters from prestigious law schools around the nation in the near future.

About the Author

ILIANA PEREZ was born in Pachuca, Hidalgo, Mexico and immigrated to the United States when she was eight years old. With the support and encouragement from her parents, family and friends, she graduated with academic and university honors from California State University, Fresno with a degree in Mathematics and minors in Economics and Business. While at Fresno State, Iliana participated in the Aztec Dance Club, Peace and Dignity Journeys, MEChA, The Hispanic Business Student Association, the Salsa Club and Associated Students Inc. Upon graduation, Iliana went on to pursue a Master's Degree in Global Political Economy and Finance at the New School for Social Research in New York City. She believes that every student deserves the right to an education regardless of legal status. Because of her personal and educational history, she feels committed to bringing change to immigrant communities and later to communities in Mexico. Iliana would like to embark on an academic career that will ultimately prepare her for a career in academia as a professor.

About Us

Educators for Fair Consideration (E4FC)

Founded in 2006, E4FC supports undocumented students in realizing their academic and career goals and actively contributing to society. We offer holistic programming that addresses the financial, legal, career, and emotional health needs of undocumented students. Specifically, we provide scholarships, legal services, professional and personal development workshops, and a strong peer network for undocumented students. We also lead presentations and create educational materials to raise awareness and support for undocumented students nationwide. Our programming is designed by and for undocumented young people with support from committed allies. For more information, please visit us online: www.e4fc.org.
